Today has been a delightful experience as I was head teacher and known as Miss C. I have learnt a lot from different classes. It was very tiring but worth it.

Some things I got to do today was open the front gate and greet everyone, lead celebration assembly (which I was very awkward in), go on a learning walk, write a report and now I am writing this newsletter but I'm sure more is to come.

In celebration assembly, I chose someone to light the candle, read out the attendance and also gave out the Mathletics certificates.

Additionally, I chose my own rainbow moment. I chose Melvyn in Yr6 because for the past week, he has settle into this school, now knows everyone off by name and is always quick to answer questions in assembly and class. Well done Melvyn!

During our Learning Walk, myself and my team discovered that there are regular opportunities to study science, especially in Year 4. In Reception, the children really like stories and they really enjoy writing. In Year 2, they watch videos to get inspiration for their writing. We want to try and encourage more writing in the early years by linking even more to stories. Children told us what they think of our school; they said that they thought there was loads of great stuff at St James' and only little things needed to be improved. I agree. I think this school is perfect the way it is, and I have been proud to be the Head Teacher today.

Last but not least, I want to thank my team of subject leaders because without them, I don't think I would get through the day without them. So thank you!

Wishing you all a very peaceful weekend,

Nyasha and all the subject leaders.
